

THE REFORMATION

OBSERVING 500 YEARS

WHO WAS LUTHER?

Did you realize Martin Luther was not born a Lutheran? In fact, he was no different than you and I -- he learned as he went. He received a typical education and, because of his intelligence, was put on a path to becoming a lawyer. But as the story goes, lightning struck and he changed course; deciding to become a monk instead. He excelled in that life, and had no desire to do anything more. His superiors had other plans for him, however, and he soon found himself a professor at the University of Wittenberg: a start-up university in an unknown shabby little town. But soon, the name of this school and the town in which it was located would be known throughout Europe.
