

THE REFORMATION

OBSERVING 500 YEARS

Week 3: Where Are We Today?

What was true in Luther's day is equally true today: issues of faith run so deep that not only do they have the potential to divide communities, but even families themselves. In 1530, the first Lutherans were asked to present their confession of faith in an attempt to reunify the Christian community. As part of their confession, the Lutherans set forth what it means to be ecumenical; what does it take to have Christian unity?

To find out how they answered this question, and why, watch the video at www.lutherhouseofstudy.org.

LUTHER HOUSE OF STUDY
LUTHERHOUSEOFSTUDY.ORG

THE REFORMATION

OBSERVING 500 YEARS

Week 3: Where Are We Today?

What was true in Luther's day is equally true today: issues of faith run so deep that not only do they have the potential to divide communities, but even families themselves. In 1530, the first Lutherans were asked to present their confession of faith in an attempt to reunify the Christian community. As part of their confession, the Lutherans set forth what it means to be ecumenical; what does it take to have Christian unity?

To find out how they answered this question, and why, watch the video at www.lutherhouseofstudy.org.

LUTHER HOUSE OF STUDY
LUTHERHOUSEOFSTUDY.ORG