OBSERVING 500 YEARS

Week 1: The Heidelberg Disputation

Less than a year after posting the 95 Theses, Luther confessed his faith in an academic setting in a document known as the Heidelberg Disputation. While that document isn't as well known as the 95 Theses, what Luther confessed shocked Christians far and wide. How so? In it, Luther wrote that the law does not help us in our relationship with God; and to think so is sin. In other words, when we do something for our benefit, either in our relationship with God or with our neighbors, that is our sin.
